The Spirit of Good Roads.

As we build good roads, farm lands and farm products will go up in price, farm products because of the cheapness of marketing, and because they can be put there while prices are good.

In the South two bales of cotton make a good load for a good team in mud roads. 12 bales can be hauled by the same team on a good road. Everybody work and talk for better roads. If all the road overseers in the county will use early in the summer the road grades, grade well the roads where they work, leaving it smooth and keep the water out of the road bed, the dirt roads will be greatly improved. Russell county took one step forward when they voted $40,000 bond issue, and it may have been costly to get machinery and get started under unfavorable weather conditions, but we hope and believe the court will contract the balance of the road to some one so that the people will know just how much road they will get for the money. Finding fault and chronic kicking never has built up a community or county, but honest co-operation and help is what makes it easy to perform seemingly impossible things. Other counties are getting good pikes for $2,500 to $3,000, per mile, why not Russell county? Every body with shoulders to the wheel, then when "Ready boys" come, go to it.

Gone to Her Reward.

Last Wednesday night, the 16th inst., Mrs. Lucy Coffey, who was the beloved wife of T. J. Coffey, died at her late home in Adair county, one mile from Bridgeport. She was a victim of pneumonia and was sick but a few days. The deceased was a devoted member of the Methodist Church and was about seventy-five years old. In her young womanhood she was well acquainted about Columbia and often visited here, being a sister of the late W. T. and T. R. Price, making Mr. W. Titus Price and Mr. R. H. Price her nephews. She was a lady highly respected for her many Christian virtues, and will be greatly missed, not only by her aged husband and children, but by the entire neighborhood in which she lived.

Mr. J. P. Dohoney, Sr., who has been afflicted for several years, in company with his nephew, Dr. W. J. Flowers, went to Louisville last Friday. He will be examined by Dr. Wathen, and if that surgeon deems it necessary an operation will be performed. His affliction is of a serious nature, and Mr. Dohoney's numerous friends trust that if he goes under the knife he will stand the ordeal heroically, and will be permitted to return home in two or three weeks.

A large barn containing 10,000 pounds of tobacco, a lot of corn and hay farming implements, etc., which was the property of Irvine Keltner, four miles out on the Campbellville pike, was consumed by fire last Friday morning between 12 o'clock and daylight. There was $1200 insurance on the building and contents.

Russell Springs will likely put in an electric light plant. The proposition is now being considered, and many of the business men favor it. It would be a great enterprise, and the convenience would further add to the building up the town. When a town shows that it is wide awake, something is going to be doing.

The prayer meeting of the Presbyterian Church will meet with Mrs. O. C. Hamilton this week. Let every member be present as far as possible at seven o'clock.

Jas. Crawhorn, about 25 years old, a son of Zach Crawhorn, died at Mt. Pleasant last Thursday night. He was a consumptive. He left a wife and one child.

REVOLUTIONARY SOLDIERS OF ADAIR.

(BY H. C. BAKER)

William Hurt was 75 years old when he filed his declaration. When he enlisted he resided in Bedford county, Virginia, and entered the service in 1778 with Capt. Alexander Cummins in the 14th Regiment of the Virginia line. Cols. Davis and Bluford were commanders of his regiment. They marched from headquarters at Valley Forge to Monmouth, and he was in that battle under Gen. Lee. Gen. Lee retreated, and on his retreat was met by General Washington, "and some words of considerable warmth ensued, after which General Washington advanced, and made a second attack on the British."

He says he then marched about sometime in New Jersey and Pennsylvania, and then marched to the White Plains in the State of New York and encamped for some time—from there he marched to Bonbrook, New Jersey, and took quarters for the winter. In the spring of 1779 he was discharged at that place. During a part of his service he was sergeant. The incident of the meeting of Washington and Lee referred to above is mentioned by the historians of the United States, but it is not certain that any account of it is more suggestive than that of this old soldier when he says, "And some words of considerable warmth ensued." Ridpath, in his history of the United States, says of it:

"Lee, who had opposed the battle, and was not anxious for victory, ordered his line to fall back to a stronger position, but the troops mistook his order, and began a retreat, the British charging after them. Washington met the fugitives, rallied them, administered a severe rebuke to Lee, and ordered him to the rear."

We do not think we read it in any history—if not, it has come to us as a tradition, possibly through this soldier, or some of the others who were present on the occasion, for several of the old pioneers of Adair were in the battle, that the father of our country at the time in the righteousness of his wrath indulged in expletives very suggestive of fire and brimstone, and a place described in Milton's Paradise Lost.

Our soldier, however, puts it mildly as "words of considerable warmth"—not cuss words. He could not say his old General would do a thing of that kind! We may add here that William Hurt was very intimately connected with the early affairs of the county, as his descendants have been since.

One of his sons, Young E. Hurt, was sheriff of the county, during the unsettled times of our civil war. Two of the sons of Young E. Hurt, viz., R. M. and J. W. Hurt, have held the same position in the county. Another of his sons, L. B. Hurt, has served a term as Master Commissioner of the circuit court, and a term as county clerk. His youngest son, Judge Rollin Hurt, of the Kentucky court of Appeals, also served two terms as County Attorney.

James Irvine, another Revolutionary soldier, has many descendants here and elsewhere, men of high standing and influence. He gives his age as 76 years.

He entered the service from Halifax county, Virginia, in May, 1776, in the 69th regiment Virginia line—under Capt. Rogers, the regiment commanded by Col. Haynes Morgan.

His first services were against Lord Dunmore, and in this service marched to a place called Cherry Point at the mouth of the Potomac. He then marched against the Cherokees to Long Island of Holston, where they built a fort. After returning home he remained for some time as a minute man, ready to be called out at any time. The next spring he was called out for a tour against the Tories, and marched to a river in North Carolina, called Tear river. They took several Tories and broke up some of their little stands where they were collected. After his return from Tear river, he took a tour in South Carolina under the command of Col. Mason, marched to a place called Stonaw in South Carolina, where he was engaged in a battle with the British. The regiment there was commanded by Col. Williamson, of South Carolina. He called a retreat and the whole regiment retreated.

He was then discharged on the banks of the Santee River.

The next spring he was called out with his wagon and team by the Quarter Master, and hauled from different parts of Halifax and Pittsylvania counties, provisions to a place called Paytonsburg. He also went from these counties to Goochland and Amherst counties and hauled provisions of the army to Irvine's old store just below the mouth of Roekfish and James river. The provisions were received there by Richard Yarbrough, Quarter Master. He then went with his wagon and team to Prince Edward Court House, and took a load of provision and clothing for the army.

He never received one cent for the use of his wagon or team.

In September, 1781, he joined Gen. Lawson's brigade, and was marched to York, and there remained in camp until the siege commenced, and was in the siege from beginning to end. He then went to Maryland, and assisted to guard the prisoners taken in that State. He had his wagon and team in the service during the whole of this tour, covering about three months.

He was placed by Col. Boyed in charge of the magazine at Boyed's landing in Halifax county, at which point he was engaged about four months.

This old soldier was born in Halifax county, Virginia, in the year 1754. When he came to Kentucky, he settled on Russell's creek, Adair county, where he was living when he made his declaration.

John Hamilton aged 73 years, made application under the acts of 1818 and 1820. He enlisted in 1777 in the county of Baltimore, Maryland, under Capt. John Smith, in the Third Maryland regiment.

During said service he was in many battles, to-wit, at the taking of Stony Point, at Gates Defeat, the battles of Guilford, Eutaw, Camden, Cowpens and several other battles and skirmishes against the common enemy. He was appointed orderly sergeant and held this position until he was honorably discharged at Annapolis, Maryland.

John Ross aged 71, applied for pension under the same acts. He served tours in the militia against the Cherokee Indians and British. He then in 1776 enlisted from the county of Bedford, Virginia, in the company commanded by Capt. George Lambert, in the 14th Virginia regiment commanded by Col. Charles Lewis, Gen. Weaden's Brigade, and continued in the service for the full term. He was in the battles of Germantown, Stony Point, Brandywine, and many other smaller engagements.

Mr. A. O. Taylor, who was formerly a partner of Dr. J. N. Page, has purchased of Mr. M. Cravens the latter's brick business house now occupied by Mr. Albin Murray. The consideration was $2,900. It will be two months or more before Mr. Taylor will be given possession. He will engage in the drug business, and his brother, Mr. Zach Taylor, will have apartments in the store and will handle jewelry and optical goods. Mr. Taylor is a registered pharmacist, and he feels that there is room enough for him in Columbia.

We learn that Mr. R. L. Faulkner, who is temporarily located on Greensburg street, this city, and who is an extensive tobacco dealer, has been very successful in recent weeks, and has largely increased his bank account. Mr. Faulkner is a Taylor-Adair man, spending his time about equally in the two counties, is a most excellent gentleman, and his numerous friends will be glad to learn of his success in handling the weed.

The residence of Mr. Fletcher Gilpin, near McGaha, was consumed by fire last Tuesday morning. The house was small and its contents were also burned. While in dollars it is not a big loss, but it was considerable to Mr. Gilpin, as it was all he had.

As we go to press we learn of the death of Mrs. Clarence Page, at Cane Valley. A more extended notice will appear next week.

Columbia Defeats Campbellsville.

The High School Basket Ball team of this place won, easily, two games at Campbellsville last Thursday. The first meet was between our home team and the C-ville High School quintet, the score being 36 to 18 in favor of Columbia.

In the second contest our boys went against the Baptist Academy aggregation, and when the game closed Columbia had 44 scores to her credit and the Academy 24.

The Columbia team moved from Campbellsville to St. Marys and engaged the school team at that place which terminated 61 to 71 in favor of St. Marys.

We have some Bibles, Testaments, Song Books and many other kinds of interesting books. Come and get them. Also Mottoes.

Died at Hot Springs, Ark.

Jacob T. Rosenfield, who was a brother of Mr. Joe Rosenfield, this place, died at Hot Springs, Ark., Monday night of last week. He was a jeweler and optician, locating in Hot Springs eighteen years ago and was very successful in business. The remains reached Louisville last Thursday morning and were taken to the residence of his brother, Lyman B. Rosenfield. Rabbi Joseph Ranch officiated at the funeral.

Besides his wife and one daughter, he leaves his father, Moses Rosenfield, three brothers and one sister.

When the deceased was quite a lad he spent some time in Columbia with his brother, Mr. Jo Rosenfield, and is very kindly remembered.

A Cleaner Columbia.

The Civic League of Columbia ask the citizens to cooperate with them in a general clean up of the streets and alleys of the town. The back alleys are filthy and filled with rubbish. Papers, straw and other material are burned on the square; this is both unhealthful and dangerous. Old bottles, banana peelings, rotten apples and other refuse matter are daily to be found on the square and on the streets of the town. The League asks that each merchant procure a garbage can install it at the place most convenient place therein all waste material and have it carted off.

Reduce your death-rate, cut down your fire insurance premiums, divide your doctor's bills, build up your health and the value of your property by working with us for "A Cleaner Columbia."

Death of May Shirley.

Last Friday night, near Milltown, Miss May Shirley, about sixteen years old, died, a victim of typhoid fever. She was a bright girl, popular with her associates and was fondly loved by her parents, brothers and sisters. A large circle of friends and relatives attended the funeral and burial. She was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Shirley, and it is our information that several other members of the family are afflicted with the same disease. The community feels the deepest sympathy for the family that is in such sore distress.

The Russell Circuit Court convened at Jamestown last Monday, Judge J. C. Carter on the bench. The usual court day crowd was in town and business fairly good during the day. Judge Carter's instructions to the grand jury covered all the phases of criminal misdoings, and the jury went to work in the afternoon. There was some stock on the market, but very little changed hands. There will probably be business sufficient to keep the Court in session ten days. Attorney A. A. Huddleston is on hand, ready to prosecute evil doers.

McCoy-Frazer.

The marriage of Miss Gladys McCoy and Mr. Will Ed Frazer, which was solemnized at the Presbyterian church of this city Feb. 12 at 6 o'clock p. m., was charming in its simplicity. Rev. J. V. Logan was officiating clergyman, and many friends of the popular young couple were present. The only attendants were Miss Mary Sampson, cousin of the groom, maid of honor, and Mr. J. Olie Frazer was his brother's best man. Mr. Frank Frazer and Mr. James Gray were ushers.

Preceding the ceremony a musical program was rendered, with Mr. J. Warren Cunningham, soloist, accompanied by Mrs. C. P. Davidson. The bride entered on the arm of her uncle, Mr. W. V. Tennant, by whom she was given in marriage, and was met at the altar by the groom.

The church was beautifully decorated in vases of cut flowers, candles, palms and ferns. The bride was lovely in a simple afternoon gown of blue taffeta and georgette crepe conbustion, black picture hat and carried bride's roses. The maid of honor was becomingly attired in dark blue taffeta, and her flowers were pink roses.

Following the ceremony the bridal party and a few friends were entertained at dinner by Judge and Mrs. Sampson and Miss Mary Sampson—Three States, Middlesboro.

We have a good stock of shoe supplies, leather, etc., on hands now. Bring your work in and save money. 17-3t T. G. Rasner & Son.

Change in Ownership

Mrs. Geo. W. Staples has purchased the stock of millinery which was owned by Stults & Co., place of business in the Russell building, and left Friday morning for Cincinnati and Louisville, to purchase a spring stock. When the spring trade opens she will have an up-to-date stock and an artistic milliner. Mrs. Staples has long engaged in the millinery business, is known as a lady of exquisite taste, and needs no further introduction.

Columbia Chapter No 7, will meet on next Friday night. Important business.

Did You Know Him?

A letter from Smiley, Texas, makes enquiry of the relatives of Samuel Workman, who left Adair county in 1870, going to Houston, Texas. Mr. Workman died Feb. 15, 1916, in Smiley. If he left relatives in Adair county they can get information by writing to V. B. Coffey, Smiley, Tex.

The game of basket ball at Lindsey-Wilson Saturday night resulted in the score of 77 for Lindsey and 4 for the visitors. The Bardstown boys have the reputation of being a strong club in their section of the State as they defeated Springfield 20 to 2 last Friday week. Two of their players are the best from St. Joseph's team which has a reputation with teams out of Louisville. In the first half Lindsey's first team made 50 scores to opponent's 0. In second half the second team center and guards with third team forward made 27 to the opponent's 4.

Mr. E. L. Sinclair has sold a portion of his stock of goods to Mr. George E. Wilson and removed the remainder to the little office formerly occupied by Dr. U. L. Taylor. Mr. Wilson has removed his goods from the basement room of Russell & Co., to the building which was occupied by Mr. Sinclair.

Mr. Nell Cape, about twenty-six years old, died at the home of Mr. B. F. Thomas, in the Egypt country, last Tuesday night. He was afflicted with consumption. Funeral discourse by Eld. F. J. Barger.

The Republicans of this county should remember that the Chairman of the County Committee has called a meeting to select delegates to the State Convention for next Saturday.

An infant child, only a few days old, of Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Neat, died last Saturday evening and was buried Sunday.

Born, to the wife of R. L. Faulkner, the 15th, inst., a daughter.

What Everyone Loses by not Being Familiar with Bible Stories.

The following Paper was read at the last meeting of the Self Culture Club by Mrs. A. H. Ballard:

The Old Testament has a special and unique value. This every intelligent reader concedes, whatever may be his views of the historic authority or the literary importance of the volume. Its unique value lies in that God-consciousness with which every page is saturated. The Old Testament, being, like the child, a revelation of the essentially human, of the elemental man, is by that very fact a revelation of man with his face toward God. And this is why the Old Testament is the natural reading of the child. For there is in all the world nothing so reasonable to the unsophisticated human being as God. We never have to explain the word "God" to the youngest baby to whom words mean anything. Man is, indeed, a religious animal, as has so often been said: the meaning of which is, that long before the age of reason or reflection arrives, almost before the baby has passed the age where its entire consciousness is a craving for the satisfaction of its appetites, the little soul reaches out for God, and grasps with satisfaction the fact that He exists.

Our children are born into this environment of the West and of the twentieth century, which of all other times and places is least congenial to the development of this fundamental human instinct, this "inevitable God-consciousness;" and if this nation is not to become like France, —a nation where infidelity has the controlling voice in the national councils, a people whose highest faculty is well-nigh atrophied,—parents and teachers are solemnly bound to recognize as their most important task that of developing the sense of God until it becomes the commanding factor in the child's life. For this there is no better method—in the case of a very young child there is no other method—than "telling Bible stories," in which, without discussion or philosophizing, it is simply assumed and shown that man is in the divine order.

In France they have awakened to this necessity, notwithstanding the noisy attempts of the extreme socialistic party to banish God from "all the thoughts" of the nation. The republic had hardly been well established when, in about 1878, it was found essential to its preservation to pass a law secularizing the common schools, replacing clerical teachers, monks, and nuns, by lay men and women. One result of this act was that remarkable development of "congregational" free schools, which has formed one of the most difficult and dangerous problems of the government in this opening century. Another result made itself more immediately felt. The next census revealed an appalling increase in child crime, and especially in child suicide. A rising young publicist, a serious free-thinker, was set by the government to study the causes of this woeful condition. His report, afterward published in a book entitled "Crime and the School," made a deep impression.

It traced the evil to one cause, the profound soul-discouragement of the child who knew not God. To such a child at the age of ten, at the age even of seven, life became literally not worth living, and he laid it down in despair, or failing courage for this supreme act of self-renunciation, he plunged into reckless self-indulgence and crime. This was the more expressive because, in laicizing the schools, the government had been clear-sighted as to the moral danger involved, and had called to its aid the most brilliant minds in France to prepare a series of text books in morals, in which all reference to religion should be omitted, for every school grade from the infant class up. The result has been apparently, to the highest degree satisfactory. It would be difficult to find in any country a series of text-books on ethics equal to these in literary character and pedagogic value. Yet ten years' use of these text-books created so thorough-going a pessimism among the children that they found goodness not worth seeking and life not worth living. The result of this inquiry led the French government to admit that however little the grown man may find a need for any Supreme Being, yet, during the educational period of the child the ultimate sanction of morals must be found in God, and, notwithstanding the clamors of the atheistic group, the name of God is no longer excluded from school text-books of morals. French pedagogues have thus discovered the truth underlying Napoleon's cynical remark, that if there had been no God it would be necessary to invent one.

Yes, the little child instinctively perceives that the religious life is the natural life, the fulfillment of human nature in the largest and truest ways. It will be admitted without argument that it is impossible to develop this God-consciousness in children by opening to them the religious experience of their parents or teachers. The absurdity of this idea is self-evident, though as a matter of fact many parents and pastors proceed on this impossible principle and endeavor to make the religious experiences of children conform as closely as possible to those of grown persons. We cannot bring the children into relations with God by showing them our own relations with Him, because notwithstanding our Lord's "Except ye become as little children," we are in fact anything but that. But the relations with God which we find mirrored in the Old Testament stories are the relations of a child people with their heavenly Father; they do appeal to the child; they awaken in him a response, not of the affections only, but of the intellect; they are an adequate and a compelling force to lead him, while yet a little child, into like relations with God. And the child to whom the sense of God early becomes second nature can no more lose it than he can lose the art of walking or of other acquired habits which have become spontaneous.

Especially appealing to the child is the freshness of feeling which characterizes the Old Testament poetry, making Herder's remark literally as well as figuratively true, that it should be read in the dawn of the morning, because it was the first dawn of the illumination of the soul. The poetic character of the Old Testament also makes it the children's book because the child nature is the poet's nature. Not only does the little child love rhythm and the balance of measured utterance,—so that it is not in the least necessary that he should understand a poem or a bit of doggerel in order to delight in it, it is also true that the child rejoices in poetic forms of utterance, in tropes and figures of speech, and in the play of the imagination. In this respect the Old Testament is peculiarly the little child's book. It abounds in metaphor and poetic imagery. For example, where the Old Testament would refer to great trees, trees whose size was notable, it calls them "trees of God." Our giant redwoods in California would surely be "trees of God" to the mind of the old Hebrew, and no other expression would so well satisfy a child's sense of awe on seeing these trees. So with the mighty voice of thunder. It was no attempt at scientific explanation, but true poetic instinct which impelled the psalmist to call thunder "The voice of Jehovah."

We teach the children history not half so much in order that they may know, and always remember things that have happened, as that they may understand life, and how to meet it. We repeat poetry to the little ones and tell them fairy tales, not merely to amuse them, nor as an exercise for the memory, but as a stimulus to amuse the imagination and to the aesthetic sense. The Bible stories serve both these purposes. The spontaneous instinct of the child, and the almost equally spontaneous revelations of human nature in these stories, correspond one to another as face answers face in water. The perpetual splendor of sentences in the Old Testament, the lofty sublimity of its suggestions, appeal to the nature of the child as no other literature does.

This, then, is the value of Bible stories for the child, that they give a religious meaning to all the experiences of his early life, and furnishes the bond of unity, the centralizing focus of all the processes, intellectual, and spiritual, of his maturing years. "No other book finds me as the Bible does," said Coleridge, and this is superlatively true of the child of any age. The Bible stories find him as no other stories do. The Old Testament made the Hebrews a peculiar people, by developing in them an unique God-consciousness. It will do the same thing for the people of the United States when it is freed from overloading convention and unintelligent interpretation. It will do this for our children, if we give it to them. And what better can we ask for them than an abiding consciousness of the presence of God?

Rifle Equipment.

A new invention for firing at close range is a flash light equipment for high power rifles which simplifies the aiming of a weapon when it is used for shooting wild beasts after dark. Unlike other lighting apparatus heretofore introduced for night hunting the beam of light has the shape of an inverted letter "T." This character is brilliantly emblazoned upon whatever object the shaft of light strikes, as, for instance, the shoulder of a lioness.

The hunter in this way is able to point his rifle almost as one would the nozzle of a hose, for upon firing, his bullet will strike the point indicated by the character. Just enough light is diffused outside of the plane of the "T" shaft dimly to illuminate a small field and show the outlines of an animal. It is said that use of the device in Australia has shown that a wild beast appears momentarily paralyzed by fear when blinded by the light.

Some Collection Box.

Under this appropriate heading, an American religious weekly gives an account of a unique collection box said to have been invented by an Oklahoma man. If a member of the congregation drops into it a 25c piece or a coin of large value there is silence. If he contributes a 10c piece a bell rings; a 5c piece sounds a whistle, and a cent fires a blank cartridge. If anyone pretends to be asleep when the box passes, it awakens him with a watchman's rattle, and a kodak takes his portrait.—Tit-Bits.

Maybe you have dull aches and pains, CONSTIPATION, headaches.

You go about your daily duties. You tell yourself you will feel better to-morrow—but when to-morrow comes you feel just about the same. You try this and that remedy, without getting real relief. CHAS. S. HARRIS, EDITOR.

Democratic newspaper devoted to the interest of the City of Columbia and the people of Adair and adjoining counties.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE $1.00 PER YEAR

WED. FEB. 23, 1916

The condition of the main roads in this county is such that no man who really desires good roads can escape the importance of securing State Aid and building every mile possible within our power. The fact is that many who opposed building by borrowing the money and issuing bonds certainly cannot, and will not, oppose State Aid to get as many miles as we can of good roads, but regardless of what we need or what we desire in this line, no effort has been made to draw a dollar from the State out of the levy for this year. It was a hard battle to accomplish this last year, and while only a feeble start has been made, yet we will draw from the State road fund over $4,000 which, added to the county levy and the subscription from the people on the road to be improved, make a little over $13,000 to be put into road building. It is believed that this amount of money will build five or six miles of good road, and this will be accomplished this year, the work to begin as soon as the weather permits. The small amount of cash to be put into construction was not sufficient to bring road builders to our county so the court took the responsibility of building it. This being true the court had to purchase road machinery which must be paid for out of the 1916 levy and amounts to over $4,000. Here it is in a nut shell, so to speak. It is held that the county can not pay for the machinery and have funds necessary to ask and receive State aid for road construction out of this year's levy, so accepting this no money can be provided for building this year and our county will pay over $14,000 to the general fund to build roads in other counties. This does not seem good business nor best for the improvement of our roads, and we suggest the following procedure to keep the work moving and to put every dollar possible into our roads as follows: Call the fiscal court to meet early in March and it can handle this situation by applying the subscription from the winning road to pay for the machinery bought, or at least a good part of it, thus enabling the county to levy for roads and ask and receive State aid. This can be determined by the same method of last year, or if the roads do not desire to accept the terms we feel certain that the bondsmen on the Stanford road will gladly advance from two to three thousand dollars for the additional levy of like amount supplemented by the State aid. This would only prevent the building of a mile or a mile and a half this year for a guarantee of two to four more next year. We can get State aid and pay for the machinery and keep the work going in building roads. If you favor this plan ask the County Judge to convene court as early as possible. April will close the door of opportunity to us this year. We suggest a meeting of the court at once.

In an opinion given by Judge Hurt, the Court of Appeals decides that a two-thirds vote is not necessary in a county road bond issue—a majority of the votes cast being sufficient. This decision affects thirteen counties that have already voted and secured a majority. They are as follows: Pulaski, $300,000; Boyd $500,000; Hopkins, $300,000; Davies, $600,000; Kenton, $250,000; Campbell, $200,000; Oldham, $100,000; Mead, $100,000; Menifee, $50,000; Trigg, $50,000; Lincoln, $50,000; Bracken $40,000. The following counties have voted and in each county carried by a two-thirds vote: Ballard and Fayette, $300,000 each; Lewis and Breathitt $150,000 each; Greenup and Knox, $200,000 each; Bell, Whitley and Harlan, $250,000 each; Rockcastle, Scott and Laurel $100,000; Nicholas, $125,000; Clinton and Russell, $40,000 and Carroll $50,000, making a bonded debt, of which the State assumes one-half of $2,840,000. Other counties are soon to vote and to secure money to build their roads. Adair county cannot avoid her payment of 5 cents on the $100 valuation into the road fund to help pay this debt, and yet we refuse to join in the game which is necessary for self protection. By and by the light may shine and this county pursue a course that will relieve it from its present condition.

The re-districting bill does not change our Senatorial district, but in the Legislative districts, Adair is placed with Taylor county, Green with Hart county, and Cumberland and Clinton comes together. The bill will likely pass both Houses, as it was introduced by a Democrat, and it is our information that the Republicans will make no fight against it.

WAR SITUATION.

Erzerum, the chief city of Turkish Armenia and the principal stronghold in this region, has been captured by the Russians, according to a news agency dispatch from Petrograd.

Russian official statement announced that nine of the forts of Erzerum already had fallen before the forces of Grand Duke Nicholas, who is in chief command of the Russian campaign in the Caucasus, which has resulted in the reported capture of this important point in the Turkish defense.

Although no further progress by the Germans in the offensive in the west is announced, Berlin declares they have maintained in the face of counter attacks all the ground won recently by their drives both in Flanders and the Champagne.

Southeast of Ypres, where the British had lost several hundred yards of trenches, they made determined efforts to regain the position, delivering three successive attacks. All of these were fruitless, the German bulletin claims.

In the Champagne, along the road from Tahure to Somme-Py, the French also were aggressors, hammering back at the Germans in a struggle to reclaim trenches from which they were driven recently. Their efforts, like those of the British, were without effect, according to Berlin, but Paris tells a different story, claiming that in hand-grenade attacks certain trench sections were recaptured.

From Havre, where the Belgian Government has its seat at present, comes the announcement that the Allied nations which were parties to the treaty guaranteeing the independence and neutrality of Belgium have communicated to the Belgian Foreign Office their decision not to end hostilities until the independence of Belgium, politically and economically, is re-established and she is indemnified for the damages suffered.

While France and Flanders are the fields of military activity that just now command chief attention, the operations of the Russians in their Caucasus campaign are developing notable points of interest. The newest development comes with Petrograd's announcement of the capture of nine of the forts of the Turkish stronghold of Erzerum, the chief city of Turkish Armenia.

Late last month the Turks were driven back to the Erzerum defenses and there have been reports that 80,000 men were locked up in the city with not more than two weeks' provisions. Re-enforcements, however, were said to be on the way and may have arrived.

Military critics link the operations of the Russians in this campaign and that in Persia with the British struggle in Mesopotamia, pointing to possible convergence of the Allied forces. The British Mesopotamian armies for their part appear to be making little progress.

Not much attention was paid for many months to the Caucasus campaign, the Russians apparently having small forces there. With the appointment of Grand Duke Nicholas to the chief command, however, it was hinted that important developments might be looked for.

Prices of foodstuffs continue rising in Great Britain under war conditions. The January increase in retail rates is officially announced to have been approximately 1½ per cent. From the beginning of the war the increase in the country as a whole has been 47 per cent. The British Board of Trade, which issues these figures, declares that the increase in prices of certain of the more important articles of food in Berlin has been 83.4 per cent., while for Vienna the increase is asserted to have been 112.9 per cent.

More than 1,000 guns were captured by the Russians when they took Erzerum, the Turkish stronghold in Armenia, according to estimates in a Petrograd official publication.

If these figures are borne out the Russian haul in cannon probably sets a record for the war in the capture of any fortress. When Novogeorgiesck fell the Germans took 700 guns.

The Petrograd estimate places the garrison of Erzerum at 100,000 men, giving ground for an assumption that the capture of this number of Turkish troops is claimed. Previous reports had indicated that the garrison was bottled up in the fortress.

These had been continued fighting between Italians and Austrians along the Austrian frontier. Vienna reports a defeat for the Italians in the eighth attack by their outposts on the Austrian position at Javereck, while before the new Austrian position in the Rombon district the ground was covered with Italian dead.

It is given out in Washington that the Lusitania agreement with Germany has been received by Secretary Lansing as acceptable to the United States so far as it relates to the Lusitania case itself. The German Ambassador, however, has been asked for assurances that Germany will not sink liners without warning, even if they carry defensive armament.

With the capture of Erzerum by the Russians interest in war operations has shifted its center momentarily to the fields of warfare in Armenia, Persia and Mesopotamia, where the campaigns are expected to be notably influenced in their course by the fall of the Turkish stronghold.

The current Turkish official statement gives no clew to the course of events following the capture of the fortress, and indeed does not record that happening. The only mention of the operation in this war area is the declaration that the Russians, in the fighting of three days preceding, lost 5,000 dead and sixty prisoners. Unofficial advices from Petrograd say that the Turkish army is fleeing westward from Erzerum through a difficult mountain region.

Military observers in allied capitals, who regard Erzerum as the key to Asia Minor, expect the Russian success to facilitate the capture of Trebizond, on the Black Sea coast to the north, giving possession to the Turkish gateway from Asia into Europe, while the Turkish forces throughout Armenia will be put in jeopardy it is argued, and the pressure on the British in Mesopotamia will be relieved. Operations on a large scale by the Russians will now be possible for the forces of Grand Duke Nicholas, it is declared.

According to the official account the British Mesopotamian forces have been heavy sufferers in the recent fighting. The British losses in the battle at Batiha, west of Korna, aggregated 2,000, it is stated.

Fighting on the western front has lessened in intensity, probably because of the prevailing bad weather, and similar conditions prevail in Russia.

Editor News:—

Greensburg

A revival is now in progress at the Baptist church, conducted by Rev. J. H. DeGarmo, of Lauren, N. C. Large crowds are attending. Among the most noted things to be mentioned is the enthusiastic response by the Junior Choir. This is composed of most all boys and girls of the town and they attend in large numbers.

The Loose Leaf House at this place has had a very successful year. Prices for tobacco, in the main, have been satisfactory to the growers, and a sufficient amount has passed across the floors to enable the Company to declare a very good dividend. The good prices for both Burley and Dark, together with favorable weather conditions, have brought about all the crop of 1915 into market. It is estimated that not more than ten per cent of the crop is yet in the hands of the grower, and this market will close down earlier than it usually does. Prices on all grades have experienced an upward trend throughout the season and prices this week were as high, if not higher, than at any time this year. Burley has sold as high as $100 per hundred pounds, and Dark has reached $14. Claud Elmore, of Green county, received the highest average on Burley—over $25 for his entire crop.

Miss Florence Tresenriter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tresenriter, and Mr. Hugh Veach, of Carmi, Ill., were married at the bride's home the Rev. Bailey, pastor of the Methodist Church, officiating.

Mr. Finis E. Wilson has returned from Atlanta, where he was called on business. While South he had a delightful hunting trip.

Greensburg is justly proud of two of its new buildings which are about completed. Mr. J. L. Wilson has built a handsome drug store, and by it another large store building which is now occupied by the Miller Shoe Store. Adjoining the shoe store Miss Exie Dowdy has built another large store room in which she handles millinery. These three rooms are of one large, handsome building, with modern conveniences and equipment. The other new building is the residence of Mr. E. T. Rogers on West Columbia Ave. Mr. and Mrs. Rogers will move into their new home this week.

If you will patronize T. G. Rasner & Son they will appreciate it. 17-3t

Mr. Jobe Kearnes, of Montpelier, an old Federal soldier, died last Sunday from the infirmities of old age. He was in his 81st year. He was a good citizen and made a true and loyal soldier. One by one they are passing and only a few more years till their reunion here will be over.

If you have not already done so, select your seed corn now, is the advice of specialists of the Department of Agriculture. By selecting seed now, time is allowed for thorough germination tests before seeding time in the spring. Such tests give the opportunity of discarding ears which do not germinate or those which give unsatisfactory tests. Seed selection now can be done more economically than it can in the spring. Another point to be considered is the size of the ear. Small ears will likely produce small yields while large ears will tend to produce big yields.

A Mother's Part.

Miss Mary Blake gives us this very beautiful description of a mother's part in life: Whatever tends to make our family life purer and stronger is doing the best and noblest service for society. Brave little Holland keeps the whole mighty Atlantic at bay with her dikes of commonplace earth and stones and turf, mere every-day material. Take courage, weary mother! Your life may seem to you not much more than a dreary grind, day after day, to supply the physical wants of your children, but if they grow up to love and honor you, because you deserve their love and honor; If they go out from you to build up other homes like the one you have made to them the purest and sweetest place on earth, you have built a few rods of dike over against your own house, and so have built not for yourself alone, but for all society; not for to-day alone, but for all time.

I keep on hands a full stock of coffins, caskets, and robes. I also keep Metallic Caskets, and Steel Boxes and two hearses. Prompt service night or day. Residence Phone 29, office phone 98.

Brain Workers' Diet.

The editor of a medical journal recently made a search of the biographies of brain workers to find those who had been exclusively vegetarians. He has found several who tried a vegetarian diet and gave it up, but not one who persisted in it.

Benjamin Franklin, who "stuck for a year or more to his resolution to eat no animal food, looked upon the taking of animal life for purposes of food as 'a kind of unprovoked murder.'" But when he saw small fish removed from the stomachs of larger ones he reasoned, "If you eat one another, I do not see why we may not eat you," so he dined upon cod very heartily, returning only now and then to a vegetarian diet.

Herbert Spencer, after six months of vegetarianism, found himself deteriorating and returned to a use of animal food. He says, "I had to rewrite what I had written during the time I was a vegetarian, because it was so wanting in vigor."

Tolstoy, who at 57 adopted a vegetarian diet, and adhered to it for 25 years, completed his greatest works before he began this diet.

The entertainment to be given by the Ladies' Aid of the Dog Hill church promises to be very successful. To draw a large crowd no admission will be charged, but the person passing the hat around will stop in front of each spectator long enough for him to decide whether or not he wants to contribute.

The Hogwallow postmaster, the subject of this interesting sketch has presided over the destinies of the Hogwallow postoffice since its establishment when there was nothing here except the big mulberry tree. At that time he was out of work and having found a good clean spot, free of woods and undergrowth, he decided it would be an ideal spot for a postoffice, and at once set about to get the government interested in the crying need of a postoffice on this site. He was successful, having made the demand so great that the postoffice was established. The postmaster knows a good deal more than anyone else around Hogwallow, having picking choice of all the literature and letters that come to the people of this section. He also knows who is going to get a letter, even before they themselves are aware of the fact. How he is able to tell is a mystery to all. In politics our postmaster is reversible, remaining with one party only so long as that party can make good and remain in power. Having no patience with any political organization that goes down in defeat, he changes his faith overnight, and this enables him to remain in the postoffice. In religious belief the postmaster is a hardshell Baptist, but is not hostile to any other so-called religious organizations. The postmaster has never been in war, though he bears scars which were sustained while he was on duty for the government as postmaster. These wounds were made a short time ago by his being bit on the ankle by a stray hog that happened around the postoffice at feeding time. He is well enough up in law to know that he has grounds there for a pensiod yet he refrains from taking advantage of the government in any such a way. In the operation of the postoffice he believes strongly in the motto of "live and let live," having one price to all. He takes much interest in the running of the government and has from time to time made some valuable suggestions as to what Congress should do.

The strongest recommendation any article may receive is a favorable word from the user. It is the recommendations of those who have used it that makes Chamberlain's Cough Remedy so popular. ### Transformations of Money.

It is interesting to note the various changes in commodities of exchange which have taken place since ancient times. Trading in one form or another goes on constantly in the course of maintaining our existence. We are continually exchanging what we have for what we need or want, and money is a standard by which relative values are established.

Skins of animals were long used by savage tribes as money. A man's fortune was reckoned by the number of skins he owned. When animals became domesticated, the whole animal replaced the skin as the unit of value. Among domestic animals oxen and sheep were the earliest forms of money. An ox was considered worth ten sheep. Cattle are still recognized as the wealth unit among Zulus and Kaffirs.

At one time slaves were adopted as the unit of value, a man's wealth being reckoned by the number of his slaves. Products of the soil have commonly passed current as money and our ancestors in Maryland and Virginia before the revolutionary war, and even later, used tobacco as money. They passed laws making tobacco money and paid the salaries of the government officials and collected all taxes in tobacco.

The use of metals as money is not of recent origin, but has gradually superseded other mediums. As the varied activities of human life developed it was necessary that money for common use should be a substance convenient to handle.

Editor News:—

If you will allow me a little space in your good paper I want to make an apology to Old Father White, of Lattimore, N. C., for misrepresenting his age. I thought when I began to read his tongue lashing to me, I had offended him by putting his age to high, but when he spoke of hearing his little playmates, Dr. Voils and Mr. Gadberry, who have already passed the century mark, speak of me as old man Wilmore and Uncle Luther, I saw at once I had put it far below what it really was, as my grandfather, James H. Wilmore, born in the year of 1803, which

TANLAC SECURE

Imitation Is Set at Defiance by the Famous Master Medicine.

Tanlac! There is magic in this household word—a magic made by success unprecedented and a fame based very solidly on its accomplishments in more than one million homes.

The ingredients for Tanlac are gathered in the remotest parts of the world. From the far North woods to Argentina, below the equator; in Russian Asia, the Alps, Pyrennes, on the sunny shores of Italy, from Brazil, Sumatra, Peru, the West Indies, and the slopes of our own timber-topped Rocky Mountains, come the roots, herbs, barks and even flowers that, under the direction of Herr Joseph Von Trimbach, the noted German chemist, are compounded into Tanlac.

There can be no successful imitation of Tanlac. It is compounded as skillfully and as mysteriously as nature distills the famed mineral waters of Europe.

Tanlac, now universally known as the Master Medicine, is proving invaluable against ailments of the stomach, liver and kidneys, and catarrhal affections of the mucous membranes, which, when neglected, so often affect the vital organs themselves. As a general tonic for half sick, run-down men and women, it builds up the tissues, creates a keen appetite, promotes digestion, vitalizes the blood and brings back color to the cheeks and sparkle to the eyes.

Tanlac may now be obtained in Columbia at the Page & Hamilton drug store, where it is being explained daily. Adv.

puts him right along in line with you and your playmates, so I think certainly it was my great grandfather you heard your playmates speak of. I asked our postmaster what he thought about you seeing to shoot a rifle without glasses. He said, "Who? That old gentleman that came from back in the East to Amanda-ville a few years ago." "Yes." "Well, he might shoot all right, but I am satisfied he couldn't see the object at which he was shooting." But when I thought you had just passed your 58th wheat harvest I was bothered again. Your brother, Bram, said Luther, "I can explain that. 'You know away back there in the East where my aged brother has been living so long, they sow wheat and have to wait two years for it to grow and mature for harvesting. So that accounts for him passing so few wheat harvest.' So I understand now that you regard old age as being honorable and that you want the readers of The News to distinctly understand that you are no longer a knee-pant kid tied to Mamma's apron strings. Now old father White I am very sorry indeed I offended you, but I sincerely hope and trust that my apology and explanation may meet with your hearty approval and that you may ever regard me as one of your best friends in the far West and that you may live far down into another century and may write many more good letters to the good old home paper which I so much enjoy reading, although many of them are too deep and perplexing for me to fully understand. They remind me of the story of the snake in the dust. He wiggles in and he wiggles out. You can't tell which way he is going or what he is about. So good-bye father White, if you give me another whipping I will take it like a little man and not say a word.

I see in cousin Jim Cager's letter from Bradfordsville, he spoke of the mud he had to contend with in making his trip through Taylor, Green and Adair. That is something we haven't had to contend with yet, but will have our share when it begins to thaw up.

We are having some genuine old fashion winter here this time. The ground has been covered with ice and snow nearly all winter and the ground is frozen deeper than usual. Ice houses have been filled with ice from 8 to 10 inches.

I see the farmers of Adair county are blessed with a good crop of mast this winter, while their hogs don't sell quite so high. Yet they realize more clear money than if they were corn fed. Corn is worth 75cts per bushel here and hogs 7 1/2cts per pound. So you see it does not pan out very good though. There are lots of cattle and hogs fed here. They ship from 3 to 5 carloads a week from Bogard alone.

Well, as I haven't any news to write, will close by wishing The News and its many readers much success and happiness.

Yours Respectfully,

L. M. Wilmore.
